DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Newly submitted claim 49 directed to an invention that is independent or distinct from the invention originally claimed for the following reasons: image presentation of a camera.

Since applicant has received an action on the merits for the originally presented invention, this invention has been constructively elected by original presentation for prosecution on the merits. Accordingly, claim 49 is withdrawn from consideration as being directed to a non-elected invention. See 37 CFR 1.142(b) and MPEP § 821.03.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

3. Claims 35-36, 40, 43-46 and 51 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by Zhang (US 2003/0054794).

Art Unit: 2618

Regarding claim 35, Zhang teaches a device controller method, comprising: presenting a graphical user interface on a display associated with a computing device 30 or 32 (para [0026], [0027]); communicating with an electronic device 22, 24, 26, 28 via local area radio frequency communication (para [0027], [0040], [0053]); determining that a controller file associated with the electronic device is available (service request, device capability, para [0061]); receiving the controller file and storing the controller file in memory associated with the computing device (return a graphical interface, description, control button, para [0061], [0062]); launching an application associated with the controller file for controlling the electronic device and inputting a command to the computing device for controlling the electronic device (play, pause, fast forward, para [0062]).

Regarding claim 36, Zhang also teaches determining the presence of an unknown electronic device within a communication range of the computing device (device discovery, para [0040]); and receiving at the computing device a controller file for the unknown electronic device (para [0032], [0061], [0062]).

Regarding claim 40, Zhang also teaches that the controller file resides in a memory local to the electronic device and the controller file is received via local area radio frequency communication (para [0063]).

Regarding claim 43, the claim is interpreted and rejected for the same reason as set forth in claim 35. Zhang also teaches a cellular phone 32 (fig. 1)

Regarding claim 44, Zhang also teaches comprising a user interface for the cellular telephone, wherein the user interface is configured to receive a user input to control the controllable electronic device (para [0032]).

Regarding claim 45, Zhang also teaches that the set of instructions are further operable to convert the user input into a command for the controllable electronic device and to initiate communication of the command the controllable electronic device (para [0032]).

Regarding claim 46, Zhang also teaches that the cellular telephone comprises a local area communication module, and the command is communicated by the local area communication module (para [0040]).

Regarding claim 51, the claim is interpreted and rejected for the same reason as set forth in claim 45.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

5. Claim 37 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Zhang in view of Linnartz (US 2002/0066018).

Regarding claim 37, Zhang does not explicitly teach inputting at the computing device an identifier for the electronic device and user authentication credentials. This type of cryptographic algorithm is also included in Bluetooth specification, which requires the device ID and PIN code for authentication, as taught by Linnartz in para [0005]. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the teaching of Linnartz to the system of Zhang in order to ensure the privacy of user's device.

6. Claims 38-39, 42, 47 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Zhang in view of Zweig (US 6,658,325).

Regarding claims 38-39, Zhang does not teach that the electronic device comprises a toy or network capable appliance and the step of receiving the controller file comprises over the air downloading of a Java application that comprises configuration application. Zweig teaches downloading configured Java application in col. 7, lines 37-41 and col. 8, line 59 through col. 9, line 3. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to include the teaching of Zweig to the system of Zhang in order to obtain rapid deployment and development instruction.

Regarding claims 42, 47, Zhang fails to teach that the toy is an automobile. Zweig teaches that the toy can be an automobile (col. 4, lines 40-46). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to include the teaching of Zweig to the system of Zhang in order to provide different kind of toys to the system.

Art Unit: 2618

7. Claims 41, 50 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Zhang in view of Koskimies (US 2004/0081110).

Regarding claims 41, 50, Zhang fails to teach that the controller file resides at a network location remote from the electronic device and the controller file is received via wide area radio frequency communication. The art of using a cellular communication system to download a file is conventionally well known, as taught by Koskimies in the abstract. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the teaching of Koskimies to the system of Zhang in order to download file when a device is cellular phone.

8. Claim 48 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Zhang.

Regarding claim 48, Zhang fails to teach that the controllable electronic device is a television. It is taken official notice that using a wireless phone to control a television is conventionally well known. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to include a TV in the system of Zhang so that one also control the operation of a TV.

Response to Arguments

9. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 35-48 and 50-51 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
